

TREATY OF THE EDROBEAN COMMUNITY

The High Contracting Parties, being the sovereign States of the continent of Edrobe, mindful of their shared continental identity and civilization, resolved to replace division with unity and cooperation, determined to preserve peace and prevent conflict, to protect sovereignty and equality among States, to promote democracy, legality, and good governance, to strengthen prosperity through integration and fair competition, to safeguard the rights of citizens and the dignity of peoples, and to act in a spirit of multilateralism and solidarity within the international order, hereby establish the Edrobean Community as a confederal framework for coordinated action and mutual benefit. In this spirit, they adopt this Treaty as the constitutional foundation of the Community.

Title I — Principles and Nature of the Community

Article 1

The Edrobean Community, hereinafter “the Community”, is hereby established as a continental intergovernmental organization of confederal character, founded upon this Treaty and possessing legal personality necessary to fulfil its purposes.

Article 2

The Community shall pursue unity, peace, prosperity, and stability across Edrobe through cooperation among Member States, while respecting the equality of States and the diversity of their political, cultural, and social systems.

Article 3

The Community is founded upon the values of peace, democracy, legality, multilateralism, solidarity, human dignity, and the protection of fundamental rights, and shall promote these values in its internal action and external relations.

Article 4

Sovereignty resides in the Member States. Competences not expressly conferred upon the Community by this Treaty remain exclusively within the jurisdiction of the Member States.

Article 5

The Community shall act only within the limits of the competences conferred upon it, and shall observe the principles of proportionality, necessity, and respect for national constitutional identity.

Article 6

Citizens of Member States shall enjoy, subject to this Treaty and implementing acts, freedom of movement within the territory of the Community, including the right to enter, reside, and depart in accordance with agreed standards.

Article 7

Citizens shall have the right to seek employment, establish residence, and conduct lawful economic activity in any Member State, under conditions of non-discrimination and mutual recognition of lawful status, subject to public order and security.

Article 8

The Community shall promote the protection of minority cultures and languages, and shall support multilingualism as an asset of continental unity, while recognising Destenian as the practical working language of common administration.

Article 9

The Community shall respect the principles of non-interference and the inviolability of internationally recognized borders of Member States, and shall reject any attempt at territorial change by force.

Article 10

The Community shall ensure transparency and accountability of its institutions, promote participation and consultation, and encourage the development of a shared civic culture of Edrobe.

Article 11

The motto of the Community is “Power in our Unity”. The anthem of the Community is the Edrobean Anthem. The emblem and symbols of the Community shall be adopted by the Presidency and protected by Member States.

Article 12

The seat of the institutions of the Community is Serijegrad, Metosia, unless otherwise decided by the Presidency for specific bodies or agencies.

Title II — Competences and Instruments

Chapter 1 — Areas of competence

Article 13

The Community shall provide a framework for economic coordination and the progressive development of an internal market, including common standards facilitating trade, investment, and competition among Member States.

Article 14

The Community shall coordinate policies enabling the free movement of goods, services, capital, and labour, through harmonised rules, mutual recognition, and cooperation among national authorities.

Article 15

The Community shall support macroeconomic stability through policy dialogue, statistical coordination, and mechanisms for addressing systemic risks, without depriving Member States of fiscal sovereignty.

Article 16

The Community shall promote infrastructure connectivity, including transport corridors, ports, aviation standards, and digital networks, through common planning, interoperability standards, and joint projects.

Article 17

The Community shall coordinate energy security and integration, including emergency response mechanisms, interconnection planning, and cooperation on strategic reserves, while respecting national resource ownership.

Article 18

The Community shall provide a framework for environmental cooperation, including climate strategy coordination, biodiversity protection, and shared standards for environmental impact in cross-border projects.

Article 19

The Community shall facilitate public health cooperation, including crisis coordination, disease surveillance, and mutual assistance, while preserving national health governance.

Article 20

The Community shall coordinate security and defence cooperation through the Edrobean Military Committee, joint training, interoperability standards, and coordinated readiness planning, without establishing a unified standing army.

Article 21

The Community shall build a framework for justice and law-enforcement cooperation, including mutual legal assistance, recognition of warrants, and joint action against transnational crime, subject to fundamental rights safeguards.

Article 22

The Community shall promote education, research, innovation, and space cooperation through programmes, mutual recognition of qualifications, and coordinated investment in continental scientific capacity.

Article 23

The Community shall promote cultural cooperation and the protection of heritage, including joint cultural programmes, linguistic affairs, and support for intercultural dialogue.

Chapter 2 — Legal instruments

Article 24

In order to exercise its competences, the Community may adopt Decisions, Directives, and Resolutions. Acts shall be adopted in accordance with the procedures of this Treaty and shall respect national constitutional requirements.

Article 25

Decisions shall be binding upon Member States in their entirety. Directives shall be binding as to the objectives to be achieved and shall be implemented through national measures within agreed time limits. Resolutions shall be non-binding and shall express political guidance and common positions.

Title III — Membership

Article 26

Membership in the Community is open to sovereign States geographically located within Edrobe that accept the values and obligations of this Treaty and that do not constitute an existential threat to any Member State.

Article 27

A candidate State shall submit a formal application to the Presidency. The application shall include commitments to comply with this Treaty, to cooperate in good faith, and to meet institutional and economic reliability requirements.

Article 28

Upon receipt of an application, the Commission shall conduct a comprehensive assessment of the candidate's political, legal, economic, and security compatibility with the Community and shall issue a reasoned opinion.

Article 29

The Presidency shall decide on candidacy on the basis of the Commission's opinion. A two-thirds majority of the Presidency is required to open accession negotiations, unless the Presidency decides by consensus to apply a higher threshold.

Article 30

Accession negotiations shall determine transitional arrangements, institutional representation, financial contributions, and legal harmonisation necessary for effective participation in the Community.

Article 31

An Accession Treaty shall be concluded between the Member States and the candidate State. It shall specify the date of accession, transitional measures, and any permanent derogations approved by the Presidency.

Article 32

The Accession Treaty shall enter into force only after ratification by all existing Member States and the acceding State in accordance with their respective constitutional procedures.

Article 33

Each Member State shall enjoy equal representation and participation rights in the institutions of the Community, access to Community programmes, and the benefits of cooperation established under this Treaty.

Article 34

Member States undertake to comply with binding Decisions and Directives, to contribute to the budget as agreed, to cooperate with institutions and agencies, and to refrain from acts that undermine the Community.

Article 35

Member States shall provide mutual assistance within the scope of this Treaty, including cooperation in emergency response, security coordination, and suppression of transnational crime.

Article 36

Where serious concerns arise regarding compliance, the Presidency may issue a formal warning and request remedial action within a specified period, following a reasoned opinion of the Commission.

Article 37

If non-compliance persists, the Presidency may adopt graduated measures including suspension of voting rights, temporary exclusion from programmes, and enhanced monitoring, taking into account proportionality and due process.

Article 38

A Member State may withdraw from the Community by written notification to the Depositary. Withdrawal shall take effect twelve months after notification, unless a different date is agreed by the Presidency.

Article 39

A withdrawing State shall remain bound by financial and legal obligations accrued prior to the effective date of withdrawal. The Commission shall prepare a settlement report for approval by the Presidency.

Article 40

The Presidency and the withdrawing State may conclude a Withdrawal Arrangement governing transitional participation in programmes, rights of citizens, and cooperation after withdrawal.

Article 41

Expulsion may be considered only for grave and persistent breach of this Treaty that fundamentally threatens the Community's integrity, security, or legitimacy.

Article 42

A proposal for expulsion shall require a reasoned report by the Commission and the opening of a formal hearing. The Member State concerned shall have full right to present its position.

Article 43

Expulsion shall require unanimous approval by the remaining Member States in the Presidency, and shall take effect on a date determined in the expulsion decision.

Article 44

An expelled State shall lose institutional representation and programme access but shall remain bound by any financial obligations accrued prior to expulsion.

Article 45

A former Member State may reapply for membership upon demonstrating renewed compatibility with this Treaty and compliance with conditions determined by the Presidency.

Title IV — Institutions

Chapter 1 — Edrobean Presidency

Article 46

The Edrobean Presidency is the supreme political organ of the Community and is composed of the Heads of State or Government of the Member States, acting on behalf of their governments.

Article 47

The Presidency shall meet at least once per year in Serijegrad and may convene extraordinary sessions in times of crisis. The Secretary General shall prepare agendas and coordinate institutional follow-up.

Article 48

The Presidency shall provide the strategic direction of the Community, define priorities, approve major programmes, and adopt decisions necessary for the functioning and cohesion of the Community.

Article 49

The Presidency shall ensure compliance with this Treaty and may establish mechanisms for monitoring, dialogue, and mediation between Member States.

Article 50

The Presidency shall appoint the Secretary General and, upon proposal, the Deputy Secretary General, as well as approve the appointment of senior officials required by this Treaty.

Article 51

The Presidency may adopt urgent economic or security measures where necessary to protect the stability of the Community, subject to subsequent review and reporting mechanisms.

Article 52

The Presidency shall act by consensus as the default rule. Where consensus cannot be reached, qualified majority voting may be used where this Treaty so provides or where unanimously authorized for a defined measure.

Article 53

Qualified majority voting, when applicable, shall be weighted to reflect both equality of States and the need for effective decision-making, according to a formula adopted by the Presidency.

Article 54

The Presidency may establish subsidiary bodies including a Summit Secretariat, Strategic Planning Directorate, Crisis Coordination Centre, Mediation and Dialogue Committee, and Security and Stability Board.

Article 55

The Presidency shall adopt rules of procedure governing chairing arrangements, convening of sessions, transparency modalities, and the publication of decisions.

Chapter 2 — Secretary General and External Representation

Article 56

The Secretary General is the chief diplomat and principal guarantor of institutional coherence. The Secretary General shall represent the Community externally and preside over summits and interinstitutional coordination.

Article 57

The Secretary General shall facilitate mediation in political tensions between Member States and may propose confidence-building measures, subject to approval by the Presidency.

Article 58

The Deputy Secretary General shall support the Secretary General and lead the administrative and executive work of the Commission, ensuring effective implementation of programmes.

Article 59

The Secretary General shall submit an annual report to the Presidency and the Assembly on the state of the Community, compliance trends, budget execution, and strategic priorities.

Chapter 3 — Edrobean Assembly

Article 60

The Edrobean Assembly is the representative and deliberative body of the Community. It shall be composed of 110 members, with ten members designated by each Member State through its national legislature.

Article 61

The Assembly shall elect a Speaker who presides over sessions, ensures parliamentary procedure, and oversees the legislative calendar and committees.

Article 62

The Assembly shall adopt resolutions, issue opinions, and conduct debates on Community-wide policies. Its acts are consultative unless this Treaty expressly grants an approval or oversight role.

Article 63

The Assembly may hold hearings, inquiries, and public petitions, summon Commissioners and officials, and request information necessary for the exercise of its oversight functions.

Article 64

The Assembly shall exercise budget oversight through examination of the Commission's proposal, review of implementation reports, and the adoption of recommendations to the Presidency.

Article 65

The Assembly may establish standing committees including Political Affairs, Economy and Budget, Society and Culture, and Foreign and Security Affairs, and may create temporary inquiry committees.

Article 66

The Assembly shall adopt its rules of procedure and shall ensure multilingual access to debates and documents consistent with the language regime of this Treaty.

Chapter 4 — Edrobean Commission

Article 67

The Edrobean Commission is the executive and technocratic organ of the Community. It shall coordinate programmes, draft policy frameworks, and monitor compliance with Decisions and Directives.

Article 68

The Commission shall be composed of eleven Commissioners, one from each Member State, appointed by the Presidency. Each Commissioner shall hold a defined portfolio, including Trade, Energy, Infrastructure, Environment, Health, Telecommunications, Defence, Justice, Research and Space, Culture, and Social Affairs.

Article 69

The Commission shall prepare the annual budget proposal, manage the implementation of adopted programmes, and maintain statistical capacity through the Edrobean Statistical Office (EdroStat).

Article 70

The Commission may establish agencies and bureaux necessary for implementation, including a Development Fund, regulatory authorities, and specialised coordination bodies, subject to oversight by the Presidency and the Assembly.

Title V — Budget and Finance

Article 71

The budget of the Community shall be founded on principles of transparency, balance, accountability, and efficient use of resources. Expenditure shall be directed to common priorities adopted by the Presidency.

Article 72

Revenue shall consist primarily of Member State contributions, calculated according to a formula adopted by the Presidency, taking into account indicators such as GDP and population, and ensuring fairness among Members.

Article 73

The Commission shall prepare an annual draft budget including projected revenues, planned expenditures, and programme allocations. The draft shall be transmitted to the Assembly for opinion and oversight review.

Article 74

The Assembly shall examine the draft budget, may request clarifications and audits, and shall adopt an opinion and recommendations to the Presidency within the time limits set by the rules of procedure.

Article 75

The Presidency shall adopt the budget by Decision. In doing so, it shall take account of the Assembly's oversight recommendations and the Commission's implementation capacity.

Article 76

The Edrobean Development Fund (EDF) is hereby established to support regional cohesion, infrastructure, and development projects. Its governance, eligibility rules, and auditing standards shall be set by a Decision of the Presidency.

Article 77

The Commission shall publish periodic implementation reports and an annual financial statement. Independent auditing mechanisms shall be created to ensure integrity and prevent fraud and corruption.

Article 78

In emergency circumstances, the Presidency may adopt a provisional budgetary measure for continuity of essential programmes, subject to subsequent regularisation through the annual procedure.

Title VI — Cooperation and Dispute Resolution

Article 79

Member States shall cooperate in good faith and shall take all appropriate measures, general or particular, to ensure fulfilment of obligations arising out of this Treaty and acts adopted under it.

Article 80

Member States shall provide mutual assistance within the scope of the Community's competences, including coordinated responses to disasters, major health emergencies, and threats to public security.

Article 81

Enhanced cooperation may be undertaken by groups of Member States in areas such as infrastructure, agriculture, defence research, customs facilitation, or digital integration, provided it remains open to all Members and is consistent with this Treaty.

Article 82

The Community shall maintain a ladder of dispute resolution: consultation within the Commission, political mediation by the Secretary General, and, where necessary, referral to an agreed arbitral mechanism.

Article 83

An Edrobean Court of Arbitration may be established or designated by the Presidency to hear disputes between Member States concerning the interpretation or application of this Treaty or binding acts.

Article 84

Arbitral procedures shall guarantee due process, equality of arms, and reasoned decisions. Decisions shall be binding upon the parties to the dispute and shall be implemented in good faith.

Article 85

Nothing in this Title shall prejudice the right of Member States to pursue peaceful settlement under international law, provided that such action does not undermine the Community's cohesion.

Title VII — Final Provisions

Article 86

This Treaty shall enter into force on the date of deposit of the instruments of ratification by the founding Member States, in accordance with procedures determined by the Presidency.

Article 87

The Depositary of this Treaty shall be the Secretariat of the Community in Serijegrad. The Depositary shall maintain the authentic texts, receive notifications, and circulate certified copies to Member States.

Article 88

The authentic languages of the Treaty are the official languages of the Community. For internal administrative practice, Destenian shall function as the working language, without prejudice to the equal status of all official languages.

Article 89

Protocols annexed to this Treaty may govern specific policy domains such as trade, defence cooperation, justice cooperation, and infrastructure standards. Amendments to this Treaty shall be adopted in accordance with a procedure requiring approval by the Presidency and a supermajority vote of the Assembly, as determined by implementing rules.

Signed on 1 November 2020, in Serijegrad, Metosia.
